

SCORES PAYNE TARIFF ACT

Congressman James Eloquently Appeals to Voters to Send Byrd to Congress.

The meeting Friday afternoon at the Courthouse was an enthusiastic one. The big Congressman from the First District held the attention of his audience till the end. The News report closed before the end of the speech. Congressman James further said in part:

"I am in favor of the election of Senators by the popular vote of the people and then we can weed out a lot of the men who are robbing the people.

"You know that Roosevelt recently went into a aeroplane and I believe the reason he did was to see just how high the Republicans had raised the tariff. The tariff on calico was 35 cents now it is 55 cents and other cotton goods have been raised almost as much and some more. John Langley voted for these schedules. I voted against them for the interest of the people. I can go back to my people and ask them to send me back to Congress but I cannot see how Mr. Langley can.

"Gus Willson promised the people that he would not pardon the murderers of Gov. Goebel, but what did he do, pardoned Caleb Powers. It is one of the most scandalous things that will ever go down in history.

"This tariff has almost ruined the United States. Do you know why the Republican party uses the emblem of the old log cabin? It is because they have driven more people to live in log cabins than anything else. Did you know when you come to trusts and monopolies that the tariff is the mother of them? When a man in the mountains distills a little liquor the strong arm of the government reaches out and gets him or if some one steals a postal card. But it has let the large trusts who are robbing the people go unpunished. It has also prosecuted the farmers who have been fighting the tobacco trusts. It has also prosecuted the laborers of the country and says that labor unions are in violation of the anti-trust law.

"Think of a government spending one billion and ninety million dollars in one year to run the government. More than you can sell the entire crop of wheat raised in the United States for. This must be stopped.

"I want to appeal to you people to elect an honest upright citizen of the United States in every sense. I want you to go to the polls and vote for A. Floyd Byrd. I am for an income tax. Democracy went through the wilderness fighting for it. It is now coming to the light. Equal rights to all people, special privileges to none."

COMMON LOT OF TOBACCO

Is Offered on the Breaks at Lexington and Prices Friday Range Very Low.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 28.—With a very common lot of tobacco on the market Friday, prices were in keeping with the grades offered, the bulk of it going at 7 to 10 cents. Some went as high as 17 cents, but prices better than 10 or 11 cents were comparatively few.

Only about 30,000 pounds were sold and the American Tobacco Company took the bulk of that, though the independent buyers went a little stronger than they did on Wednesday and Thursday.

There has been considerable objection by the buyers to the wet tobacco that many of the farmers have been bringing out the early market and public announcement was made of this Friday morning at the close of the sale at the Farmers' warehouse, when after the buyers had objected to some tobacco that had apparently been allowed to stand under a leak in the barn or else had been sprinkled in order to bring it into case. W. A. Leas, of the Farmers' warehouse, made a short talk advising the farmers against such practice and showing them wherein they hurt themselves by doing it, and explained that he buyers were protesting strongly against such tobacco, as most of them could not use it.

The lowest price of the season so far was paid Friday morning when some very inferior trash, that was good for little more than fertilizer, was sold for two cents a pound.

Sales were held at the Lexington, Shelbyville, Farmers and Growers houses, but all the sales were small.

At the Lexington house 10,220 pounds were sold at prices ranging from 6.50 to 17 cents; at the Shelbyville about 6,000 pounds were sold at 5 1/4 to 16.5; cents at the Farmers house 5,000 pounds were sold at prices ranging from 4 to 15.75 and at the Growers house 9,500 pounds were sold, the prices on all except three baskets of an exceptionally bad crop, ranging from 6 to 16 1/4 cents. The three baskets of very low grade trash were sold at 2, 2.9 and 2.8 cents.

There will be no sales on the loose leaf market here Saturday, it being customary to have no auctions on that day. The next sale will be held Monday.

GIVES REASONS FOR REFUSAL

Clark County Construction Company Files Statement With County Judge Evans.

The Clark County Construction Company filed Friday afternoon with Judge Evans its statement of the reasons for abandoning work on the county roads and why it considered that the county had violated the contract.

Mr. D. S. Gay, the president in speaking of their statement, said: "It is up to the people now. They want good roads, they are the ones primarily interested. If they allow the same old gang to run things as formerly, the roads will be in the same old condition.

"Judge Evans and his friends have had a machine here for years. They have paid political debts with the roads; they have used the roads to influence elections. They do not want the money spent to the best advantage as it would be done by building pikes with modern machinery. They want the old hand system, breaking rock and spreading it.

"They cannot forgive the Construction Company for convicting them of doing business in violation of law. They resented at the time and they still resent the idea that we had the nerve to appeal to the courts to have road work done in the legal way.

"The County Judge and Road Supervisor have usurped the province of the Fiscal Court. They prepared specifications which no other Fiscal Court ever presented and made them as indefinite as possible in order that the Construction Company would be at their mercy if they got any of the contracts.

"But we believe the people are with us in our fight. We have equipped a modern plant. We are better prepared than any other company in Kentucky to build good roads and we believe the business men and the farmers of this city and county will insist that the roads be managed in a business like way and that they be no longer the tail of a political kite."

The following is the statement of the company:

Winchester, Ky., Oct. 28th, 1910. To The Clark County Fiscal Court.

Gentlemen:—In response to the invitation to attend your meeting Friday, the 28th inst., presumably to have us state more fully the reasons for our notification to the county that it has broken its contract with us and that we would not do any more work upon the pikes, we are of opinion that a verbal wrangle would be useless and that a deliberate statement in writing of our position would be more satisfactory to all parties.

We can say in a nutshell that the controlling facts, which have been the source of all the trouble, are, in our opinion, the disappointment of the County Judge and Road Supervisor that we succeeded by a law suit in forcing the public letting of the roads, their further disappointment that we were given any contracts, and their consequent determination to either force us to abandon the contract, or to lose money on it, so that neither we, nor any other Construction Company, would ever dare bid another year, and thus the construction and repair of the roads would fall back into the realm of political jobbery from which a wise law of the State has attempted to rescue them.

We do not impute any bad faith to the individual members of the Fiscal Court, but do insist that this court has left this matter entirely in the hands of the County Judge and the Road Supervisor, and has not itself as a court taken an active part in this matter, and has not assumed the control of the whole business of building and keeping in repair all the county roads through a road committee, as is done in other counties in which the roads are kept in repair by taxation. You have seen fit to delegate all these duties to you, County Judge and Road Supervisor.

It would consume too much of your time to ask you to consider all the obstacles we have had to meet, or all the acts of injustice to which we have had to submit in our earnest endeavor to faithfully carry out our contract and give to this county the better roads to which it is entitled in this day of material advancement in all other avenues of comfort and convenience in living.

When this contract was awarded us we added an expensive hauling outfit of a traction engine and cars and have made in all an investment of sixty thousand dollars ($60,000.00) in our plant, with the expectation of getting our share of the business of making modern up-to-date roads provided, of course, we could do it at less cost than if done in other methods or by other persons.

The following are some of the matters of which we complain:

1. Before the contracts were let we asked that some approximate information be given us as to the places where the Supervisor would require the stone put, but, in the presence of the County Judge, declined to set it out by sections in the advertisement, as is customary elsewhere, or to give us any verbal information on the subject.

As hauling is one of the large items of expense in furnishing stone it will be seen that this course was unjust to the bidders and detrimental to the interest of the county in securing bids, as they had to be made in the dark.

2. As soon as the contract was let, and after the time for advertising had passed so that another bidder could not be had, the Supervisor announced that we would not be permitted to fill our contract by furnishing stone from our quarry. He knew that we were expecting to use this quarry and yet he never objected while our bid was being considered, nor when it was accepted and the contract was made. This action held us up until the court could be called together to consider the question. We appealed to the Fiscal Court and this court showed its fairness and justice in setting aside the objections of these officials and in directing that our stone be accepted, under our contract.

3. We proceeded then promptly with the work and just previous to finishing the work on the McClure pike we were informed by the County's Weigher that he had been instructed by the Supervisor not to weigh the smaller portions of stone, that serve to fill crevices and make the top dressing. We were astounded to learn then for the first time that the County Judge and Supervisor construed the contract to mean that this portion of the stone was to be furnished free, though it was clean hard limestone that passed through a two and a half-inch ring which was the only specification of the contract. It sells everywhere or the market for the same, or a larger price, than the other stone, it costs the same to crush and haul it and it constitutes nearly one-fourth of the stone which we were required to furnish. We insisted, and still insist that the language of the contract admits of no such construction, but assuming that it is ambiguous, a majority of the members of this court—Squires, Dooley, Dykes, Swope and True—stated frankly that it was their understanding that the screenings were to be paid for, and they were really the ones who made the contract for the county, as they were the four who voted to accept our bid. The three members of our company stated the same understanding, so that, regardless of the technical interpretation of the contract itself, which was signed by our president without submitting it to his counsel and while hurrying to a train, it was manifest that if their construction was proper it was a clear mistake which business men would promptly correct.

The court, however, was mistakenly advised that they had no power to correct, though a majority thought it should be corrected, and hence we were, after another considerable delay, forced to bring suit to construe the contract, and if held to be ambiguous, to correct it by making it clear that we were to be paid for the screenings. In the suit which was filed the four magistrates above named have testified under oath that they understood and intended the contract to mean that we should be paid for the screenings. The suit has not been decided and they are still holding our money.

4. We resumed work without waiting for the decision of the court, but were again met with what we considered an unjust and arbitrary action under the contract, namely, we were required on the Lexington pike, the first of the main pikes, to haul seventy per cent of the material to the two miles on the far end near the Fayette county line with only a few rock scattered over the rest of the pike. So on the Iron Works pike we were not allowed to furnish any stone closer than two and a half miles of Winchester, while the far end of this pike, where there was plenty of stone and we purposed putting our portable crusher, they took away from us entirely.

5. When we purchased the hauling outfit, which was another manifest disappointment to your officials who knew that at the price we were doing the work we could not haul by wagons without losing money, other obstacles arose: the County Judge and Supervisor did their best to get prominent men to protest to this court that the use of this hauling machinery was injurious to the roads, but this was abandoned when nearly all who were approached stated that it was a benefit instead. It cannot be claimed that there was any impropriety in our using this heavy machinery for the contract required us to roll the pikes, and the weight of the roller is greater per square foot of surface than any of the other machinery.

6. The county then delayed us time and again in fixing the bridges so that we could haul over them.

The numerous delays which have been caused by your officials have been and are extremely costly to us as we were compelled to pay our men and hold them in readiness to do the work of the county which we had undertaken. The many ways in which we have been mistreated and impeded when taken viewed singly, but when taken collectively are extremely important to us and vital to our contracts.

7. Upon the Wades Mill pike it became very material to us to know approximately where the stone was to be placed as we expected to use a portable crusher and haul the rock with teams. We accordingly in writing asked the Supervisor and the County Judge to indicate approximately what quantities would be needed on the various portions of that pike, which for convenience we divided into four specified sections. This both of them refused to do. Mr. Haggard says in the public press that he went over the road and told Mr. Hodgkin where the rock was to be placed and that he agreed to come again when our crusher was set; but that is just what we feared, that he would then require it hauled to the furthest point from the crusher. If he wanted to give us this information, why should he object to giving us the approximate requirements in writing and before we located our crusher, for his verbal suggestions were too indefinite to be of service and besides they were subject to change at any time. His unexplained failure to give us this information showed conclusively that his only purpose in withholding this information was to require us to haul the bulk of the material the greatest possible distance as he had done on all other roads repaired by us.

Under a fair and reasonable interpretation of our contract we were entitled to this information and could not in justice to ourselves go on without it, hence, after heretofore enduring everything in order to carry out the contract, we gave notice that for this and other breaches by the county we would go no further with it.

It is claimed by the officials that we are only quitting because we cannot comply with the contract by December 1st, the date fixed. Our contract calls for about ten thousand dollars ($10,000) worth of material. We have furnished over six thousand ($6,000) of this, including the extras, and but for the obstacles and obstructions which we have met at the hands of your officials we could easily have finished all the work within the time fixed.

The roads of the county are, financially speaking, as important to the city as to the county in promoting the exchange of business between the two; from the standpoint of personal comfort they are, of course, more important to the farmers. It is henceforth up to the people

ROYAL PAIR ARE THREATEND

Anarchist Says He Will Throw Bomb to Kill Emperor William and the Empress.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 29.—Extraordinary precautions were taken Thursday night to protect Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria when they left this city for Berlin because of a letter threatening His Majesty which was received at his royal palace.

The letter was signed by a "Military Brussels anarchist," and read: "Since no one has had the courage to blow up the German autocrat I have decided to throw the bomb." Efforts of the authorities to arrest the writer were fruitless.

All windows of the house overlooking the streets through which the royal party passed from the palace to the railway station were ordered closed temporarily and the station itself was packed with troops. The railway line for a considerable distance out of the city was guarded.

BIG SUIT FOR MANY MILLIONS

Court of Appeals of Illinois Takes Rap at Back Taxes From Illinois Central Railroad.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 29.—The Illinois Central Railroad Company, sued by the State for back taxes tentatively placed at fifteen million dollars was defeated in the preliminary hearing of the case by a decision of the Supreme Court Friday.

The effect of the decision is to send the case back to the Circuit Court of La Salle county for a hearing on its merits. It is the contention of Governor Deneen that for 33 years the railroad has been "milking" the State through its system of accounting for gross earnings on which it is required under its charter to pay 7 per cent to the State in lieu of other taxes.

The suit was filed by the Attorney General early in 1907 following a message of Governor Deneen to the Legislature in which it was asserted the railroad had so manipulated its account as to credit the millions of its earnings to lines not chartered in Illinois and hence not subject to the 7 per cent tax appropriation made by the legislature to defray the expenses of the accounting.

This accounting swells the amount which the Governor has estimated to be due the State from five million to fifteen million dollars.

When the State filed its bill in the La Salle county Circuit Court three years ago, the railroad entered a demurrer and also demurred to appeal bill filed later by the State.

The Circuit Court sustained the demurrers, issuing a decree dismissing the complaint from this decree. The state appealed and Friday's decision indicates that a Supreme Court find the complaint sufficiently tenable on its face to warrant a trial on its merits.

PRINCIPALITY IS AT STAKE

Title to More Than 2,000,000 Acres of Kentucky Lands At Stake in Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—An empire larger than the entire State of Delaware or the Island of Porto Rico lying in Kentucky, is the prize at stake Friday in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The presentation of the controversy to the Supreme Court in oral arguments will reveal an unusual story in the western advance of American civilization.

Owing to the carelessness with which Virginia is said to have issued grants just after the Revolutionary war to unserved and little known lands in what is now Eastern Kentucky, the greatest confusion has resulted at to the true owners of the land in twenty eastern counties of that Commonwealth.

To add to this confusion it is said that Kentucky did little better than her mother State of Virginia in the first years of her history. As a result additional "blanket" grants made by the State are now challenged.

In all, about two million five hundred thousand acres of land are said to lie under the doubtful title of these "blanket" grants. Of this amount, the Eastern Kentucky coal corporation of which C. B. Hillhouse, is recredited with being the chief stock owner, claims title to half a million acres. On the other hand three thousand citizens of the State of Kentucky have entered these lands.

Claimants under "blanket" grants call them "squatters." Attorney General Breathitt of Kentucky has appeared in the Supreme Court to assert in defense of their claim to the title that they are people who built up the State and erected the Commonwealth with its courthouses and school houses, its municipalities and internal improvements. They have for years, the Attorney General said in his brief filed with the Court, paid taxes on the land while a search of the records, where such information would be found, he says, shows, the sum total of all taxes paid by the claimants under the Virginia grants in litigation since the organization of Kentucky in 1792 to the present time, does not exceed $75.

Recent legislation in Kentucky resulted in decisions by the State courts which practically took away any title which the claimants under the "blanket" grants might have had. These claimants now come to the Supreme Court in a final appeal, denouncing the legislation as a "spotiation" and "lawless confiscation" revolutionary and subversive of all constitutional and orderly government.

On the background of legal contest are many stories of conflict and suffering resulting from the confusion of ownership.

LOUISVILLE PRICES HIGHER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 29.—With the close of sales of the week on the local auction breaks Friday afternoon, figures were given out by the Louisville Leaf Tobacco Exchange showing that Louisville is in no danger of losing its distinction as the largest tobacco market in the world. Old Burley, colory smokers, strippers, cutters and natural leaf fillers were fully one-half cent higher. The highest price realized on the offerings of the pool was $19.25, this price being brought by a hoghead of good colory tobacco.

The American Tobacco Company took a leading part in the bidding and bought heavily of the offerings, especially of the better grades. Offerings of new burley continued of poor quality and in poor condition. However, there were a few hogheads of colory grades which met with a good demand and desirable leaf sold fairly well, but low grades were lower.

NO SALE HELD AT CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 29.—There were no sales of pooled burley tobacco Friday, but more of the 1909 crop will be offered on the local breaks Saturday.

TITLES FOR NOVELS.

The fact that the title selected for one of the season's new novels—"Let the Roof Fall Down"—has already attracted considerable attention, which is perhaps exactly what the author, or her publishers, intended it to do. The combination of words certainly arouses curiosity. It also foreshadows, according to the law of imitation in book titles familiar to all whose business lies with literature, the likelihood of numerous variants, of which "Let Us Raise the Roof" would be the most obvious. We have just passed through a period of titles of novels beginning with "When," started by Mr. Charles Major's "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and through the still more recent "Call of" style of title, introduced, if we remember aright, in Mr. Jack London's "Call of the Wild." A decade or so ago Mrs. Deland's "John Ward, Preacher," somewhat of a novelty in the way of titles, brought down an avalanche of similar inventions, among them "Metzger," "Shoemaker."

The range of the novelist's inventiveness in the matter of good titles is amazingly narrow, and is almost reducible to a very few overworked rules, which such brilliant exceptions as "The Scarlet Letter" and "Vanity Fair" only serve to prove. First and foremost, in length of service and literary importance owing to the masterpieces to which it is attached, is the descriptive title, of which "The Bride of Lammermoor" and "The Heart of Midlothian" are perfect examples. This form of title has been and continues to be at one time or another the refuge and reliance of all novelists. "The Pilgrims of the Rhine," "The Adventures of Philip," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Diana of the Crossways," "The Return of the Native," "The Marriage of William Ashby," "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "The Intrusions of Peggy," which, of course, leads direct to "The Misadventures of Nancy."

WINCHESTER LUMBER & MANUFACTURING CO.

found "The Tragic Comedians." Wilkie Collins succeeded in the case of "The Woman in White" and Charles Reade had a rare knack of choosing titles that awakened interest. Henry James, too, has often succeeded singularly well in inventing titles that suit his subject and his treatment of it to perfection.

Another rule for the naming of a novel is to form its title out of the kernel of an appropriate quotation and here Mr. Howells stands first. He has gone repeatedly to Shakespeare in naming his books, and, of course, never in vain: "A Foregone Conclusion," "A Hazard of New Fortunes," "A Counterfeit Presentment," "A Modern Instance"—these are titles of merit. But Mr. Howells has also a fine gift of originality in choosing titles, as witness the appropriateness of "Indian Summer" and "April Hopes," while the far more recent "London Films," of the essence of the book it names, proves that the gift has not forsaken him. —New York Tribune.

Weak Over-worked Women

Who are broken down and made invalids by the drudgery of never ending household cares and duties, or by over-frequent bearing and nursing of children, and many other cares, burdens and strains which the weaker sex have to bear, are deserving of profound sympathy. But while sympathy is commendable what these unfortunate women most need is a good, honest, square-deal Restorative Tonic and Strength-giving Nerve and Regulator—one compounded and carefully adapted to act in harmony with woman's peculiar, delicate, ever sensitive organization.

Who so well fitted to select, carefully proportion the ingredients and compound a remedy for the cure of these distressing and often pain-wracking weaknesses and derangements, as the carefully and thoroughly educated and regularly graduated physician who has had a long and successful experience in treating just this class of cases.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

THIS MEDICINE IS

THE ONE REMEDY Now, and for over 40 years, sold by druggists for Woman's Peculiar Weaknesses, and Distressing Ailments, gotten up by one having all of the above qualifications.

THE ONE REMEDY which absolutely contains neither alcohol (which to most Women is rank poison) nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY which is so perfect in its composition and so good in its curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient, as they do, on its outside wrapper, verifying the same under solemn oath.

In all the above most important particulars, the "Favorite Prescription" stands absolutely alone—in a class all by itself—as woman's most reliable and trust-worthy remedy in time of sickness and distress. It is a pure glyceric extract made from American curative roots, found by long time experience most valuable in curing woman's weaknesses and derangements. The leaders in all schools of medical practice have endorsed each of its ingredients as of the best known remedies for the complicated affections for which it is recommended. These professional endorsements should count for far more than any number of lay testimonials. A booklet full of them sent free on receipt of name and address.

AUDITORIUM.

One of the funniest acts that has appeared at the Auditorium theatre in some time is Lew Wood, the ventriloquist, who amused a large audience Friday night. With Tommy and George, the boys who smoke, talks and sings. Come this is undoubtedly the best act seen here in a long time. Currie and Earl, pianologue and comedy entertainers, are presenting an excellent act mixed with plenty of good music, songs and some good baseball dope. With two good pictures the show is above the standard.

Ladies, don't fail to attend the demonstration of Burnett's extracts and fruit coloring this week at Parrish and Bradley's. 10-24-11.

Origin of "Boom." "Boom," as in the phrase, "rubber boom," is of American origin and appears to have originated in the west somewhere about 1875. Its original reference was to rapid movement producing a roaring sound. When a "lin" of logs breaks up the logs are borne violently down stream, and are then said to be booming, so it seems probable that the expression originated in the lumber trade, and spread thence to all forms of business.

LARGE CROWD AT SPEAKING

Joint Debate is Held at Prestonburg Between John W. Langley and A. Floyd Byrd.

(Special to The News.)

PRESTONBURG, Ky., Oct. 29.—

The largest crowd ever assembled in Prestonburg to listen to a political discussion was here Tuesday to hear the joint debate between Congressman John W. Langley and A. Floyd Byrd. Mr. Langley was accorded a division of time by Mr. Byrd, who had advertised his speaking some time ago. The followers of both candidates indulged in a great deal of cheering and applause, and enthusiasm was at the highest pitch throughout the discussion which lasted nearly three hours.

Mr. Langley was born and reared in this county, is deservedly popular and has a very strong following among Democrats. Almost every friend and relative he has in the county were present Tuesday, and it was conceded that two-thirds of the crowd were with him.

Mr. Byrd and his managers were much chagrined over the demonstration in favor of Langley, and Mr. Byrd's speech was not up to the standard that his friends expected. He confined himself almost entirely to a discussion of the tariff, and his anti-protection views did not take well with many of his own party. He omitted several of the statements he had made at other points regarding Langley, but the latter had stenographic reports of Mr. Byrd's previous utterances, and took them up one by one literally tearing them to pieces, producing documentary evidence that contradicted Mr. Byrd in nearly a dozen instances. He demanded that Mr. Byrd go back to the places where he had made these statements and apologize to the people for his misrepresentations. During this portion of his exhortation of his opponents position he was wildly cheered by his friends.

This was the best campaign speech Mr. Langley has made. He gave a masterly exposition of the protective tariff system as applied to the farmer and a comparatively undeveloped country like the Sandy Valley, devoting some time to the protection of coal and lumber. He reviewed his work in Congress and mentioned the additional measures he would advocate when re-elected, and severely arraigned Mr. Byrd for his position on pensions and internal improvements and scored him for his advocacy of "free coal and free lumber."

It was a red letter day for the Republican candidate and unless all signs fail it presages his re-election. His friends made all sorts of fun of the report that had been circulated that he was avoiding a joint debate with his opponent, and although this county (Floyd) is strongly Democratic, it is predicted that he will carry it from three to four hundred.

A Ring at The Doorbell

By LOUISE IDA ROSS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Trevor were sitting on October evening before a blazing wood fire—they had not yet lighted the furnace—and the room was aglow and redolent with the pleasant odor of burning wood. The children had been romping. Mr. Trevor, carrying Bennie pigback and Willie on all fours, but their mother had now taken them all, including the girls, up to bed, tucked them in, kissed them good night and had returned with her sewing, which she was doing by the big lamp on the table, while Mr. Trevor read a magazine.

There was a ring at the bell. Now, for many years there was something in the ring of his doorbell that cast a sober look over Samuel Trevor's face. But to explain the reason for this it is necessary to go back to the time when he was a very young man.

When he was but eighteen his father, who was a lumber merchant, sent his son to a lumber camp that he might learn the business which would one day be his, from the beginning. There is danger to all persons of that age of inexperience and recklessness that they may make a misalliance, and on that account it is a bad plan to take them away from young girls of their own social circle and place them among their inferiors. And where would a young man of refinement find people more his inferiors than in a lumber camp? Among the girls there was Madge Hopkins, the daughter of a lumberman, several years older than Trevor, who lured him into indiscretions with her, then threatened him with vengeance if he refused to marry her. He did so, but immediately left the camp.

An effort was made to annul the marriage, but it was unsuccessful. Then the woman offered to refrain from troubling her husband if his father would support her. Remittances were sent regularly for a season, when suddenly a newspaper was received containing a notice of her death. No doubt was felt of the truth of the notice when several years had passed and, no remittances having been sent, no demand was made for them.

Twelve years after the conclusion of this episode Samuel Trevor married Agatha Beach. He told her all about it before being engaged to her, not expressing a doubt that his first wife was dead. "You may be sure of that," said Agatha, "or she would be drawing the lifeblood out of you." Nevertheless Trevor, having had nothing but the death notice to prove to him Madge Hopkins' demise, never felt absolutely sure. And that was the reason why a certain dread was connected with the ringing of his doorbell.

A maid in a neat uniform of black and white went to the door, and the wife and husband heard a woman's coarse voice ask for Mr. Trevor. Then, without waiting to be answered, the caller brushed past the maid and into the sitting room.

"Hello, Sam!" she said. Trevor put his hands to his face and trembled. It was Madge Hopkins, and, judging from her appearance, she had been growing coarser with every year.

Mrs. Trevor ran to her husband and put her arms about him as if to shield him from the blow.

"I needn't be afraid of me," said the woman, "if you'll give me something to live on."

"Why did I receive that notice of your death?" faltered Trevor.

"I ain't got nothin' to do with that. I ain't got nothin' to live on. Send them remittances that was dropped and I'll let y' alone."

"Mamma!" cried the oldest daughter, a girl of ten, from above. "What's the matter?"

"Leave your address and go," said Trevor, eager to get the woman out of the house before the children should learn who she was.

The address was given, and the woman went away. Then after a silence Mr. Trevor said:

"Don't worry on my account, dearie. My position is not pleasant, but what is it compared with the interest of you and the children? Be comforted. We will keep the secret. Send the remittances regularly and no one will be the wiser."

But Mrs. Trevor had no intention of letting the matter rest where it was. A shrewd woman, she believed that there had been some weak spot in Madge Hopkins' record which was accountable for the spurious death notice and the failure to claim the remittances.

It was but a week after this, when Trevor came home one evening from business, that his wife received him with a radiant countenance that boded good news. Taking him to a room where the children would not hear and closing the door, she said:

"It's all right. I put a detective on her track, and he has been here this afternoon to report. The woman has never been Madge Hopkins since you have known her. She was secretly married before you met her to a lumber shaver—whatever that is—and, he drifting away, she took you in. But after you left he returned and claimed her. She lived with him; but, fearing if you appeared in their lives she would be tried for bigamy, she sent you the notice of her death, which she had inserted in a paper for the purpose, and gave up the remittances. Her husband has recently died, and she came back on you for support."

The Barber in History.

Lovers of history will readily recall the influence possessed by the barber-valet and confidant of Louis XI of France, Olivier le Dain, and perhaps less easily the name of Nicholas Stagebeck, who gained a like influence with Christian II of Denmark; while there is no doubt that many other men in the calling have been on the most friendly terms with their famous customers who enjoyed their discourse and did not disdain their advice. Like the barber of Montbard, in Burgundy, who, to the end of his days, boasted that on one memorable morning he had shaved before breakfast "three men capable of ruling a world," Messrs. Buffon, Rousseau and Voltaire.

The Richmond Sentinel contains a lengthy article relative to Dr. J. H. Holmes, who performed a very rare surgical operation on Mrs. Wm. Evans several days ago. We print the nurse's statement and regret that we can't print the whole article.

"As nurse, I was trained by and served under white doctors in Louisville where I have seen many operations performed by some of the best surgeons of the South, but truly I never saw an operation performed with greater skill, greater pains-taking in every detail than by Dr. Holmes. This is the first colored surgeon I ever seen perform an operation and I must confess that I was surprised at his skill and care."

MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—WHEAT—There was temporary strength yesterday due as before to covering of local shorts interests. The general belief appears to be that the best prices which can be expected for the present were made on the swell yesterday and that the market is in a position to yield to selling pressure.

The bulls counted on the buying of wheat for France a few days ago and now Paris reports that half the wheat needed has been bought. Wheat stocks are large everywhere at home and abroad, and we favor the selling side of these futures on hard spots.

CORN—Light country offerings are to be expected until more of the crop is gathered and until the corn raisers become a little further convinced of the permanency of lower prices. Weather conditions at present are favorable and there is no reason to suppose that the natural movement will not take place. What ever little buying flurry may appear in December corn, we feel that sales of May on the moderate bulge will prove profitable on the decline which is almost certain to follow.

PROVISIONS—Gelt says 16,000 hogs against 15,000 estimated, and against 14,000 last year. Outside trade continues light. An easier corn market encouraged the pit and scalp trading to favor the selling side.

ANGER.

Of all passions, there is none so extravagant and outrageous as that of anger; other passions solicit and mislead us, but this runs away with us by force, and hurries us as well to our own as to another's ruin; it fills many times upon the wrong person, and discharges itself upon the innocent instead of the guilty, and makes the most trivial offenses to be capital, and punishes an inconsiderate word perhaps with fetters, infamy or death.

Taking a Chance. The mistress was giving Harriet the benefit of her advice and counsel touching a momentous step the latter contemplated. "Of course, Harriet," said the lady of the house, "if you intend to get married, that's your own business; but you mustn't forget that marriage is a very serious matter." "Yes, mum," said Harriet. "Yes, mum; I know 'tis sometimes, mum. But, mum, maybe I'll have better luck than you did, mum."
